University of Iowa Wrestling Team Physician

1. Your body's ability to burn solid fat is at its peak immediately after waking up. If you are going to do some extra cardio, do it when you wake up (without eating) and you will burn more fat.

2. Don't jog excessively to Make Weight. You shouldn't get in the habit of jogging for miles and miles each week in order to lose weight. If you try to lose weight by jogging, you will start eating the muscle off of your body. Aerobic activity is NOT an efficient means of losing fat. A controlled meal plan is the answer.

The idea is to lose BODY FAT only (not muscle). Body fat can best be lost by modifying diet. Extra workouts should be running (3x week), lifting weights, calisthenics and body weight exercises at a brisk pace (pushups/ sit-ups/ pull-ups/ chin-ups/ dips) to burn calories/maintain strength.

3. Don't Dehydrate. In order to wrestle at your best each of your body systems requires water. If you have to lose a couple of pounds (maximum) to make weight after you have followed your diet, only then you will restrict your water intake. Restricting is not the same as not drinking water at all, though. You still need to give yourself 3-4 ounces of water every 3 hours on days that you are trying to make weight. Remember, this is to keep up your strength. You need to plan well in order to do this right. Don't wait until two days before, and get drastic in your weight loss system.

4. Keep Up Your Strength Training. During the wrestling season, YOU HAVE TO STRENGTH TRAIN! You will not keep strength gained during the off-season if you neglect training during the season. If you are cutting weight, it is even more important to keep up your strength training.

5. Eat More Frequently/smaller portions. Feed your body the correct ratio of protein/carbs, and fats. If you starve your body, you will cause a rebound effect, and have even more trouble making weight next week. The answer lies in trying to lose fat, not muscle and water. You do this by eating less, more frequently. Five or six smaller meals each day will allow you to lose body fat while sparing muscle, give you energy to wrestle hard, and be strong.

6. Stay Away From Sugar. Wrestlers who cut weight by eating very little and doing excessive jogging tend to get sugar cravings. Sugar has no place in your wrestling meal plan. If you are within 3 or 4 lbs. of your weight class, you might want to consume 60 grams or so of high glycemic carbohydrates (sugar) on the form of grape juice or apple juice within 20 minutes of your strength training session. Otherwise, stay away. It turns into fat.

MAIN GOALS TO SUCCESS:

1. Show-up at weigh-ins hydrated
2. Fasting (not eating) makes weight cutting harder (and eats muscle)
3. 6 small meals a day is the best way to lose/keep weight off
4. Losing weight rapidly causes a loss in muscle/strength
5. The object is to lose FAT, not water
6. Eat meals slowly for a better sense of fullness
7. Plan your meals; Eat every 4 hours
8. Be disciplined; Count your calories;
9. Stay away from packaged products (except Power/Protein bars)

BREAKFAST: (6:00 – 9:00 AM) (Drink at least 8 oz water with all meals & snacks)

Breakfast # 1:

3 Hard boiled eggs (75 calories @ 5 fat, 6 protein, 1carb)
1 Piece toast (wheat or grain)(70 calories @ 1fat, 3 protein, 14 carb)
1 teaspoon jelly on toast (30 cal)

You are probably eating at least 2500 calories a day right now (A 137-pound man will maintain his weight if he exercises an hour a day and eats 2600 calories. You are exercising MORE than an hour so your calorie count may be higher than 2500)

If you stick to this diet (and are eating 2500-2700 calories a day right now) you will lose about 1 ½ - 2 pounds of fat per week (Every 3500 calories is equal to one pound of weight loss). You have to remember that the portions of fish/chicken/meat are really small (the size of a deck of cards) and if you're going to eat salad dressing, it should be low fat/low calorie and you should eat it this way:

*The dipping-technique: Have your salad dressing served on the side. Dip your bare fork into the dressing and spear a bite of your salad. Do not scoop. You will have dressing on every bite; yet need only a fraction of the amount that you normally use.

All of these things make a difference. Drink 5 – 8 cups/bottles of water a day. Have a small glass of apple or orange juice if you want (before lift). These are really hard to stick to. You always have to be counting calories and you can't cheat, Trust me, though, in about a month it will pay off. Good Luck.

DIET SHEET TWO

Read the three paragraphs below – VERY IMPORTANT INFORMATION

This is a sample day. It's a little protein high (protein should be about 25-30% of your daily diet – and this day is 31%) but it's pretty good.

If you could eat this exact diet 3 days a week, it would be great (because there is a good chance that the diet you are working off right now is protein low and carb high – this will balance that out).

It's important to remember that it's not only calories you have to count. You have to have the correct percentages of protein, carbs and fats too. If you don't your body begins to attack your muscle for food. That is why we see a lot of wrestlers crash at the end of the year. They ate the right number of calories to keep their body weight down, but they are consuming the wrong percentages of carbs, proteins, and fats.

1 GRAM OF PROTEIN = 4 CALS
 1 GRAM OF CARBS = 4 CALS
 1 GRAM OF FATS = 9 CALS

At the grocery store, buy PAM spray, and a measuring cup. (Assuming you have a frying pan.

MEAL #1 5:00 – 9:00 AM

A. Great breakfast/lunch. Good protein and filling. Spray Pam in frying pan. Chop up mushrooms, onion and pepper and cook in frying pan 5-10 minutes (until onion brown and pepper soft). Add 2 cups egg whites. Stir until done. Add ketchup and eat with one slice wheat bread.

TOTAL	450	33.9g	38.6g	1.2g

SNACK #1 10:00 – 12:00 AM

B. SNACK #1. You NEED this to get the proper fats (or you'll start bingeing). This would be a good snack twice a day (to get your fats in).

ITEM	CAL	PROTEIN	CARB	FAT
2 tbsp peanut butter	192	8g	5.9g	16.7g
1 slice wheat bread	69	2.7g	12.9g	1.2g

MEAL #2 11:00 -2:00 PM

C. This meal gives you some good carbs (for your upcoming afternoon workout) and catches you up on the fats you need that will stop the urge to binge. You have to eat some fats or you'll lose it and binge.
